ANNEX II: Terms of Reference

Production of pre-campaign and during campaign visual documentation for the “Along the Nile” campaign

A. Background

UNFPA Cairo office thrives to contribute to raising awareness and gaining support from all stakeholders on population growth, family planning, female genital mutilation and gender based violence and youth reproductive health and rights. UNFPA is a lead agency in reaching out to youth when it comes to aspects of innovation and creativity to deliver quality messages, aiming at better knowledge by the public and to change of perspectives and attitudes that will enhance the quality of life of the Egyptian people especially Egyptians youth and women.

Egypt’s population witnessed dramatic increase during the last decade and is estimated at 92, 3 million people compared to a total of 72 million people in 2006. In absolute terms, the population of Egypt has increased by over 20 million in 10 years. More than 90 per cent of today’s population lives on approximately 6 per cent of the territory, putting extreme pressure on limited land and water resources. This steady increase of 2.4 percent per year threatens to hinder all development efforts with major implications on security and quality of life, on basic services, education, health, housing, and water.

With 62 percent of its population below age of 29, the country is reaching the peak of the “youth bulge”, the largest cohort of young people in its history. This can translate into serious challenges or opportunities, depending on the investments made in this group. Especially crucial is investing in young women who face tremendous inequalities that result in disparities in education, protection, employment, access to services, including sexual and reproductive health services and public participation. Investment in young Egyptian is essential to turn the “youth bulge” into a demographic dividend.

Building on the successful Youth Population Awareness Bus initiative that UNFPA concluded in August 2017, in collaboration with the Ministry of youth where (number) were reached through a bus tour in 9 governorates, aimed at raising awareness on family planning, GBV, FGM and population growth. UNFPA Cairo office is launching a pioneer campaign, where three young runners will be crossing the Nile in Egypt in continuous 30 days, aiming at raising awareness on population growth, focusing on family planning, family size and youth participation. The Run will be accompanied with several associated outreach events and activities in cooperation with UNFPA partners in Egypt; Ministry of youth and Sports, National population Council and the Youth Peer Education Network in Egypt (Y-PEER).
